What: Gumboot Friday is a FREE counselling service for any young person in New Zealand aged 25 and under.

Why?: An overworked and under resourced public mental health service has led to excruciatingly long wait times for young people needing immediate help.

Gumboot Friday was designed to meet the needs of young people and provides free and timely access to counselling. Using fully qualified, licensed practitioners from the private sector, our rangatahi from 5 to 25 years old are able to access help and more often than not, are now seen within a fortnight.

What can you do? Without you there is no counselling. We need your passion, energy, and positivity. We need your drive, dedication and fun, but most of all we need your involvement. Changes in 2024 have brought about an allocation of Government funding for this program, however we still rely on public donations alongside this to match the growing demand for this service.
